It is such a blessing for my family to support the new home for Chabad at Cornell. Truly a center for Jewish life at a time when our youth most need it! A place for belonging, a place for learning, a place for supporting the Jewish way of life for our children as they venture away from home... needed more than ever in the face of growing campus antisemitism.

-Joe Lubeck & Family

We are supporting this project because Chabad provides students with a family and community on campus where they can stay connected to their heritage. The new facilities will enable Chabad to accommodate many more students and expand their programming in a warm and welcoming environment.

-Bob Diener & Family

Cornell Chabad very quickly became the home away from home for our sons, Sam and Josh, and their friends on Shabbat and holidays. We concluded that supporting Chabad meshed perfectly with our passion for Jewish continuity. 15 years later we continue to see Cornell Chabad grow in its mission of meeting the needs of thousands of Jewish Cornell students. We enthusiastically support this long-awaited major building project and can't wait to see its fruition.

-Meryl & Joey Mark

I love Chabad. They are the most effective Jewish organization in the world. They accept you for who you are and where you are in your Jewish journey. They introduce you to other Jews, they perform acts of worship and kindness. They show you how to become more involved in Judaism, if you wish. But they also follow the Rebbe's lead and teach you to respect others and bring the community together.

-David Litman (A&S '79, Law '82)

3 reasons why we support Chabad of Cornell's Building Campaign:

Home Away from Home. Cornell Chabad provides what all Jewish parents want to give to their children: delicious traditional Jewish food and unconditional acceptance!

Spirituality. Cornell Chabad lifts Jewish spirits with its engaging mix of relaxing, recharging and insightful Jewish learning together with their ultimate spirit lifting farbrengens.

Gratitude. Cornell Chabad creates a community where friends and staff feel like one family. Anyone who visits is welcomed with open arms. We support Cornell Chabad's building campaign so that many more students and their families can enjoy the same invaluable warm embrace!
